

Faksimil, endast omslag och framvagn

Christian Fleck, Matthias Duller & Victor Karády (eds.),
Shaping Human Science Disciplines. Institutional Developments in Europe and Beyond
Socio-Historical Studies of the Social and Human Sciences
Palgrave Macmillan, The Netherlands 2019, 396 p.

Socio-Historical Studies of the Social and Human Sciences

Series Editors

Christian Fleck
Department of Sociology
University of Graz
Graz, Austria

Johan Heilbron
Centre Européen de Sociologie et de
Science Politique (CESSP)
CNRS - EHESS - Université Paris 1-Panthéon-Sorbonne
Paris, France

Marco Santoro
Department of the Arts
Università di Bologna
Bologna, Italy

Gisèle Sapiro
Centre Européen de Sociologie et de
Science Politique (CESSP)
CNRS-Ecole des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales
Paris, France

This series is the first to focus on the historical development and current practices of the social and human sciences. Rather than simply privileging the internal analysis of ideas or external accounts of institutional structures, it publishes high quality studies that use the tools of the social sciences themselves to analyse the production, circulation and uses of knowledge in these disciplines. In doing so, it aims to establish Socio-Historical Studies of the Social and Human Sciences as a scholarly field in its own right, and to contribute to a more reflexive practice of these disciplines.

More information about this series at <http://www.palgrave.com/gp/series/15409>

"This book is a pioneering one: based on original comparative research on the development of the social sciences in Europe and beyond, it shows the fruitfulness of an institutional approach shared without any dogmatism by all the contributors. Rich in fresh data and bold hypotheses, this work will be useful to all those who are interested in the social science of social sciences, an emerging and promising field."

—Jean-Louis Fabiani, Central European University, Hungary

"Comparativity in social sciences is akin to physical exercises: most scholars lament the lack of it – and do nothing about that. The authors of this book made a perfect job of producing a truly comparative history of social sciences, including both a wide range of national cases, from Argentina to Hungary, and an extensive spectrum of disciplines. This book discovers for social scientists how rich and diverse are the legacies of their intellectual enterprise."

—Mikhail Sokolov, European University at St. Petersburg, Russia

Christian Fleck · Matthias Duller
Victor Karády
Editors

Shaping Human Science Disciplines

Institutional Developments in Europe and Beyond

palgrave
macmillan

Editors

Christian Fleck
Department of Sociology
University of Graz
Graz, Austria

Victor Karády
Department of History
Central European University
Budapest, Hungary

Matthias Duller
Department of Sociology
University of Graz
Graz, Austria

Acknowledgements

This book is a result of the European research project INTERCO-SSH “International Cooperation in the Social sciences and Humanities”, which was conducted by an international team of social scientists between 2013 and 2017. The project received funding from the European Union Seventh Framework Programme (FP7/2007-2013) under grant agreement no. 319974 (Interco-SSH).

The editors thank Thomas Klebel, Graz, for his ingenious handling and designing of the data the authors submitted to this volume.

Socio-Historical Studies of the Social and Human Sciences
ISBN 978-3-319-92779-4 ISBN 978-3-319-92780-0 (eBook)
<https://doi.org/10.1007/978-3-319-92780-0>

Library of Congress Control Number: 2018943853

© The Editor(s) (if applicable) and The Author(s) 2019

This work is subject to copyright. All rights are solely and exclusively licensed by the Publisher, whether the whole or part of the material is concerned, specifically the rights of translation, reprinting, reuse of illustrations, recitation, broadcasting, reproduction on microfilms or in any other physical way, and transmission or information storage and retrieval, electronic adaptation, computer software, or by similar or dissimilar methodology now known or hereafter developed.

The use of general descriptive names, registered names, trademarks, service marks, etc. in this publication does not imply, even in the absence of a specific statement, that such names are exempt from the relevant protective laws and regulations and therefore free for general use.

The publisher, the authors and the editors are safe to assume that the advice and information in this book are believed to be true and accurate at the date of publication. Neither the publisher nor the authors or the editors give a warranty, express or implied, with respect to the material contained herein or for any errors or omissions that may have been made. The publisher remains neutral with regard to jurisdictional claims in published maps and institutional affiliations.

Cover image: © Insights/Contributor/Getty Images

Printed on acid-free paper

This Palgrave Macmillan imprint is published by the registered company Springer Nature Switzerland AG

The registered company address is: Gewerbestrasse 11, 6330 Cham, Switzerland

Contents

1	Introduction: Shaping Disciplines—Recent Institutional Developments in the Social Sciences and Humanities in Europe and Beyond	1
	Christian Fleck, Matthias Duller and Victor Karády
2	The Rise of the Social Sciences and Humanities in France: Institutionalization, Professionalization, and Autonomization	25
	Gisèle Sapiro, Eric Brun and Clarisse Fordant
3	Germany: After the Mandarins	69
	Matthias Duller, Christian Fleck and Rafael Y. Schögler
4	The Post-war Institutional Development of the SSH in the UK	111
	Marcus Morgan

5	Discipline and (Academic) Tribe: Humanities and the Social Sciences in Italy	147
	Barbara Grüning, Marco Santoro and Andrea Gallelli
6	The Institutionalization of SSH Disciplines in the Netherlands: 1945–2015	189
	Rob Timans and Johan Heilbron
7	A Reversed Order: Expansion and Differentiation of Social Sciences and Humanities in Sweden 1945–2015	247
	Tobias Dalberg, Mikael Börjesson and Donald Broady
8	Institutionalization and Professionalization of the Social Sciences in Hungary Since 1945	289
	Victor Karády and Peter Tibor Nagy
9	Arduous Institutionalization in Argentina's SSH: Expansion, Asymmetries and Segmented Circuits of Recognition	327
	Fernanda Beigel and Gustavo Sorá
10	Concluding Remarks	361
	Christian Fleck, Matthias Duller and Victor Karády
	Index	385

Notes on Contributors

Fernanda Beigel is a principal researcher at CONICET and Head Professor at the National University of Cuyo (Mendoza-Argentina). Specialized in Sociology of Science and director of the Research Program on Academic Dependency in Latin America (PIDAAL). Her work is nurtured in the crossroad of Bourdieu's reflexivity and the Latin American tradition of Dependency Analysis. Recent publications: The politics of Academic Autonomy in Latin America. Ashgate: London, 2013; "Peripheral Scientists, between Ariel and Caliban. Institutional know-how and Circuits of Recognition in Argentina. The career-best publications of the researchers at CONICET", Dados (60:3), 2017; "Institutional expansion and scientific development in the periphery. The structural heterogeneity of Argentina's academic field" Minerva, 2018.

Mikael Börjesson is a professor in Sociology of Education at Uppsala University and is co-director of the research unit Sociology of Education and Culture (SEC) and director of the Swedish Centre for the Studies of the Internationalisation of Higher Education (SIHE). His main research domains are fields of education, transnational strategies and the internationalisation of higher education, elites and elite education, as well as applications of Geometric Data Analysis. He is currently directing the research project Swedish Higher Education. Financing, Organisation, Enrolment, Outcomes, 1950–2020 (SHEFOE), funded by the Swedish Research Council.

Donald Broady is a professor emeritus at the Department of Sociology, Uppsala University. Directing, with Mikael Börjesson and Marta Edling, the research unit Sociology of Education and Culture (SEC), see www.skeptron.uu.se/broady/sec/. Research on the sociology and history of cultural fields, elites, education, students' trajectories, transnational educational strategies, mark-up languages, internet applications.

Eric Brun is currently a postdoctoral researcher at the Curapp-ESS, a laboratory of the University of Picardie Jules Verne, France. He is the author of Les Situationnistes, une avant-garde totale (2014). A first axis of his research questions the political commitment of the intellectual professions by focusing on the artistic and political 'avant-gardes'. A second axis deals with the SHS Studies. A final line of his research concerns the sociology of youth.

Tobias Dalberg is a doctoral student at the Department of Education, Uppsala University, Sweden. He is currently finalizing the dissertation Reaching the Pinnacle of Scholarship: Social, Educational and Professional Trajectories in the Humanities and Social Sciences in Sweden During the First Half of the 20th century. He is the co-author on "Elite Education in Sweden—A Contradiction in Terms?" in Claire Maxwell and Peter Aggleton (Eds.) Elite Education: International Perspectives (Routledge, 2015) and "Higher Education Participation in the Nordic Countries 1985–2010: A Comparative Perspective" in the European Sociological Review (2017).

Matthias Duller is a postdoctoral researcher in the Department of Sociology at the University of Graz, a fellow at the Centre for Advanced Study in Sofia. His research focuses on the history and sociology of the social sciences during the Cold War in East and West. Further research interests are in historical sociology, sociological theory, and set-theoretic methods.

Christian Fleck is a professor at the Department for Sociology, University of Graz, Austria and Chief Research Fellow at the Poletayev Institute for Theoretical and Historical Studies, Higher School of Economics, Moskwa, Russia. Most recent publications: Sociology in Austria, Basingstoke: Palgrave Macmillan 2016; Etablierung in der Fremde. Vertriebene Wissenschaftler in den USA nach 1933, Frankfurt-New York: Campus 2015; A Transatlantic History of the Social Sciences: Robber Barons, the Third Reich and the Invention of Empirical Social Research, London: Bloomsbury Academic 2011.

Clarisse Fordant is a Ph.D. student at the Ecole des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales (EHESS), France. She investigates the french scientific and political debates surrounding the measurement of integration and discrimination through the use of ethno-racial statistics between the years of 1995–2012.

Andrea Gallelli holds a Ph.D. in sociology from the University of Turin. His researches focus on social network analysis, cultural production and social exclusion, with a particular focus on the relational determinants of cultural products and activities. Currently based in Luxembourg he conducts consulting activity on survey design and data analysis for the non-profit and public sector.

Barbara Grüning is a postdoctoral research fellow at the University of Bologna (Italy). Her research fields range from the sociology of social sciences to the sociology of space and the sociology of memory.

Johan Heilbron is a historical sociologist, director of research at the Centre Européen de Sociologie et de Science Politique (CNRS, EHESS) in Paris and affiliated with the Erasmus University Rotterdam. He is currently a member of the Institute for Advanced Study (IAS) in Princeton. His research is in the fields of economic sociology, sociology of art and culture, and the sociology of knowledge and science. Book publications in the latter area include The Rise of Social Theory (1995, also in Dutch, French, and Portuguese), The Rise of the Social Sciences and the Formation of Modernity (co-edited, 2001), Pour une histoire des sciences sociales (co-edited, 2004), French Sociology (2015), and The Social and Human Sciences in Global Power Relations (co-edited 2018).

Victor Karády is emeritus research director of the French CNRS and distinguished research associate at the History Department of the Central European University in Budapest. He has made a dual career of historical sociologist at the Parisian EHESS and (since 1992) at the CEU. He served as principal investigator (associated with Peter Tibor Nagy) in two European research ventures: ELITES08 (on elite selection in six formerly socialist countries) and as the Hungarian partner of the INTERCO-SSH project (on the social sciences since 1945). His bibliography includes over 350 publications. Among the most recent ones see (with Adela Hincu, eds.), Social Sciences in the Other Europe, Budapest, CEU Press, 2018.

Marcus Morgan is a lecturer in Sociology at the University of Bristol, UK. His current research is in the areas of political sociology, social movements, and cultural sociology. He is the author of Pragmatic Humanism: On the Nature and Value of Sociological Knowledge (Routledge, 2016) and Conflict in the Academy: A Study in the Sociology of Intellectuals (Palgrave, 2015).

Peter Tibor Nagy is a doctor at the Hungarian Academy of Sciences, university professor and head of the Research Center for Sociology of Church and Religion at the John Wesley Theological College in Budapest (<http://wesley.hu>). He was co-leader of the European projects ELITES08 and (as a Hungarian partner) INTERCO-SSH (on the social sciences since 1945). His research foci include the history of educational provision in Central Europe, national schooling policies in a comparative perspective, secularization and the social standing of churches, historical sociology of the human sciences. He is author of 11 books in Hungarian and co-editor of 4 books in English, with altogether over 300 scholarly publications. See: <http://nagypetertibor.uni.hu>.

Marco Santoro is a professor of Sociology at the University of Bologna, Dipartimento delle Arti. He works on the history of the social sciences, cultural production, intellectuals, and on the mafia. He is a founding editor of "Sociologica. Italian Journal of Sociology". He has recently edited The Anthem Companion to Everett Hughes (2016, with Rick Helmes-Hayes).

Gisèle Sapiro is a professor of sociology at the École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales and Research director at the CNRS (Centre européen de sociologie et de science politique). The author of La Guerre des écrivains, 1940–1953 (1999; Engl. French Writers' War, 2014), La Responsabilité de l'écrivain (2011) and La Sociologie de la littérature (2014; Spanish 2016; Japanese 2017), she has also (co)edited Pour une histoire des sciences sociales (2004), Pierre Bourdieu, sociologue (2004), Translatio. Le marché de la traduction en France à l'heure de la mondialisation (2008), Les Contradictions de la globalisation éditoriale (2009), L'Espace intellectuel en Europe (2009), Traduire la littérature et les sciences humaines (2012), Sciences humaines en traduction (2014), Profession? Écrivain (2017).

Rafael Y. Schögler is an assistant professor of translation studies at the University of Graz. In 2017 he was visiting researcher at the Centre for Translation Studies at UCL London and the Centre for Translation and Intercultural Studies at the University of Manchester. His research interests comprise sociology of translation, translation in the social sciences and humanities and sociology of SSH. Recent publications include "Les fonctions de la traduction en sciences humaines et sociales", in: Parallèles 29/2 (2017); "Translation in the Social Sciences and Humanities: Circulating and Canonizing Knowledge", in: Alif 38 (2018).

Gustavo Sorá is a tenured professor in the Anthropology Department at the National University of Córdoba and Researcher at CONICET (Argentina). His research focuses on the history and sociology of book publishing and translation. Book publications include Editar desde la izquierda en América Latina. La agitada historia del Fondo de Cultura Económica y de Siglo XXI (Siglo XXI: Buenos Aires, 2017), Brasiliánas. José Olympio e a gênese do mercado editorial brasileiro (Edusp: São Paulo, 2010) and Traducir el Brasil. Una antropología de la circulación internacional de ideas (Libros del Zorzal: Buenos Aires, 2003).

Rob Timans is a sociologist and economist affiliated with the Erasmus Center for Economic Sociology (ECES) in Rotterdam the Netherlands. His Ph.D. thesis Studying the Dutch Business Elite: Relational Concepts and Methods won the Dutch Sociological Association's Prize for best dissertation of 2015–2016. His research interests are in economic sociology and the sociology of knowledge and science, in particular the sociology of research methods.